

NOMAD

CARVE A DIFFERENT LINE

With longer legs than most trail bikes and a lot less bulk than most freeride bikes, the Nomad sits in a class of it's own. On one hand you've got a light but strong aluminum frame and 160mm of VPP travel. And on the other hand there's an ISCG05 chainguide mount built into the frame and a beefy 1.5" headtube. It's a big country trail bike that rolls up or down with ease. It's a flyweight freeride bike that dances circles around heavier rigs but is still burly enough to tackle serious terrain. Wherever you want to go, the Nomad is good for it.
